2009 Dialysis Facility Report

Accessing the Comments Website

Authentication Required

The Dialysis Facility Reports (DFR) secure comments website requires authentication as an authorized user. The credentials for your facility are shown below:

Web address: www.DialysisReports.org

Your facility's master login credentials:

Username: xxxxxx

Password: xxxxxx

These master login credentials will allow you to create "individual" accounts that may then be used to view the DFR for your facility and to submit comments. After login, you will be asked to create an "individual" user account for any person accessing the comment site. These individual accounts must be used for all viewing of reports and comment submission.

Security

Because the comments you submit and the DFRs may be of a sensitive nature, this website uses industry-standard transmission encryption and login verification techniques. The credentials listed above should be stored in a safe place, and used only to create or disable individual accounts. Each user's individual account can be used any time during the comment period, as well as in future comment periods.

Individual account information should not be shared.

The deadline for submitting comments is September 8, 2009.
